Dear families,

In our classroom we are learning about the 13 Moons connected to the Indigenous community in our area. Throughout the school year we will be talking about each of the full moons and how they relate to the environmental changes we see in the natural world around us.

As you know, we believe in creating a strong home-school connection! You can support your child's learning and growth throughout this learning by:

- Taking time to mark each full moon on your 12 month calendar at home
- Collecting (and sending in!) evidence (from your backyard, green spaces, nature walks, etc.) that align with the changes connected to the full moon
- Helping your child notice and name the things they see, hear, smell, feel and maybe even taste as we move through the months, but especially as we get closer to the full moons

Our first full moon is on: _____

It is called: _____

A few days before the full moon consider walking and playing outdoors with your child to help them connect to the changes they are noticing in the natural world. We can't wait to hear what they say!

All the best,
